CD 1435-6 - all names are probably those of the right. It is possible Vinson's source was NOPD, not unusual for a private detective. I do not remember the Ford or the license number from the NOPD version. I recall that as copies blowing out when the car was in motion. This is an inexpensive neighborhood, the 1100 and adjoining blocks of Pine. You have my memo pointing out that location was also close, as close, to Kent Courtney's. There was a Cuban on the corner. I've forgotten his name. The street running parallel and closer to the center of town is Broadway and marks that boundary of the university. In short, Pine is but a short block from the university and there are and were many students in that area.
